

Women: Back to the Future

Saturday, March 14, 2 pm matinee performance

Kate Campbell Stevenson brings to life women from history. This special performance will feature Sacagawea, Native American guide and interpreter; Bessie Coleman, First African American female pilot; Eleanor Roosevelt, First Lady and humanitarian; and Rachel Carson, marine biologist and mother of the modern environmental movement. Proceeds from the performance will be donated to support the Maryland Women's Heritage Center, the first statewide center of its kind in the nation to provide a place to learn and teach about the contributions of Maryland women throughout the State's history, to develop leadership for girls and women, and to hold forums to address issues impacting girls, women and their families.
